The modern, multi-functional special ship harbor Brake with the international call sign DEBKE has been operated by the Lower Saxony Ports GmbH & Co. KG since 2005. The owner is the State of Lower Saxony. Ships coming from the North sea and having drafts slightly exceeding twelve meters can reach Brake's „Stromkaje" (riverside quay) which has a length of 2.5 kilometers. A railway connection and modern truck terminals provide for an ideal traffic infrastructure. In particular, bulk products such as grain, animal feed, sulphur, minerals and wood products, but also iron, steel and project / heavy lift goods are handled in Brake. The imposing silos of the company J. Müller, founded 1821, have been part of the harbor ambience of Brake for a long time.
